COMPANY PROFILE

TriState Capital Holdings, Inc.'s (NASDAQ: TSC) record of profitability and exceptional growth is a product of its strong sales and credit culture, highly scalable business model and unique financial services distribution network. Its branchless TriState Capital Bank subsidiary serves middle-market commercial customers in select regional markets, as well as high-net-worth (HNW) individuals through its nationally focused private bank. Its Chartwell Investment Partners subsidiary provides investment management services to institutional clients through separately managed accounts and retail clients through its mutual funds and other platforms.

Investment management and private banking have emerged as the low risk, minimally capital-intensive engine of future earnings for TriState Capital, combining to represent ~50% of total revenue.

DISTINCTIVE REVENUE MODEL

The company's distinctive revenue model is designed to deliver superior top-line expansion by pairing TriState Capital Bank and Chartwell Investment Partners, two fast-growing and diversified operating businesses with vastly different capital needs. TriState Capital Bank is growing lower-credit-risk, lower-yielding private banking channel loans at a faster rate, making lower-risk and floating-rate loans the primary driver of current growth in lending and net interest income. Significant non-interest income growth from Chartwell offsets lower yields and improves and diversifies TriState Capital's revenue mix, as reflected in the company's 30% contribution of non-interest income to total revenue in 1Q18, well above the average for bank holding companies with assets of $3-$5 billion. The investment management business and the private banking channel currently contribute ~50% of total revenue. In April 2018, the Company closed on its Columbia Partners investment management acquisition bringing Chartwell's AUM to more than $9 billion.

EXCEPTIONAL LOAN PORTFOLIO

Well-balanced loan portfolio with 54% private banking, 16% commercial and industrial (C&I) and 30% commercial real estate (CRE). Historically the company's loan growth was driven by successful execution on commercial middle-market opportunities in its core markets. Recent and future growth is driven by the company's unique private banking niche, with 171 financial intermediary partners and low credit risk. The bank has never experienced a loss on a marketable-securities-backed loan, its fastest growing channel. Total loans grew 22% from March 31, 2017, led by private banking with 27% growth.
